

There's a trend for media ownership to become more and more concentrated, for the large businesses to gobble up the small, so that fewer and fewer companies own more and more of our airways. In some areas, those few owners have almost complete control over all we see and hear.

Our democracy depends on citizens being well-informed, which means having all points of view available to us. If we are to remain a democracy, limits must be imposed on the ownership of media.

The airwaves are public property. As representatives of the US public you are responsible for assuring that the airwaves remain free, not monopolized anywhere by a few.
